

LADY LUCK TATTOO ARTS EXPO

Needles, ink, blood, and cash! The 10th annual Lady Luck Tattoo Expo in Reno, NV, is in the books. Ink slingers from all over the country converged upon Reno—bad economy be damned—to strut their mastery of machines on flesh, featuring three convention halls with so many tattoo machines buzzing that a blind person might mistake it for a marital aid convention. The artists who didn't have someone under the needle were hard at work stretching their imaginations and recording their ids' imageries on paper to be ready for the next passer-by to peruse and hopefully pick as their next ink work to wear. Reno's own Nightmare Tattoos even had a three-on-one ink session with a man who had only three spots left to ink; the gentleman is now thoroughly topped off. The only thing missing this year was a little old lady tattooed head-to-toe and wearing a two-piece bikini. Tip of the hat to Mr. Tim Azinger for a decade of producing the expo—with many more to go! Check out tattooogh.com for more of Tim's shows.

